

Nature: Sensory

Amelia Baron | Jessie Davies | Michelle Duxbury |
Sam Metz | Helen Thomas

This exhibition is called Nature: Sensory. It features work created by the artists Amelia Baron, Jessie Davies, Michelle Duxbury, Sam Metz and Helen Thomas.

The exhibition reimagines how we experience the environment. It goes beyond just looking to explore other ways we engage with nature.

The works highlight different senses such as touch, rhythm, sound and movement.

The artists in this show have disabilities or long-term health conditions. They give fresh and unique views of how they interact with Wakefield's green spaces.

Their work challenges traditional ideas about landscapes. They show unexpected and thought-provoking perspectives.

Nature: Sensory was supported by Wakefield Council's Culture Grant as part of Our Year - Wakefield District 2024. It is also supported by The Art House.
